

Dubravko Sabolić was born in 1969 in Zagreb, Croatia. He completed his Ph.D. in electrical engineering at the University of Zagreb in 2004. He also obtained a Ph.D. degree in economics from the University of Split, Croatia. He is currently a full professor at the University of Zagreb (adjunct staff), where he has taught the students of electrical engineering and computing economics and business-oriented courses since 2005. He currently works full-time as the Compliance Officer of the Croatian Transmission System Operator. He was the CEO of that company from 2007 to 2012. From 2001 to 2004, he was a Commissioner at the Croatian national regulatory authority for telecommunications. He published about a hundred scientific and professional papers and four books.